

Creative Commons Licences

From those four Licence Elements, the following six standard licences are available:

	Attribution This licence lets others distribute, remix, tweak, and build upon your work, even commercially, as long as they credit you for the original creation.
	Attribution-NonCommercial This licence lets others remix, tweak, and build upon your work non-commercially with credit to you (their new works must also be non-commercial).
	Attribution-ShareAlike This licence lets others remix, tweak, and build upon your work even for commercial purposes, as long as they credit you and license their new creations under the identical terms.
	Attribution-NonCommercial-ShareAlike This licence lets others remix, tweak, and build upon your work non-commercially, as long as they credit you and license their new creations under the identical terms.
	Attribution-NoDerivatives This licence allows for redistribution, commercial and non-commercial, as long as it is passed along unchanged and in whole, with credit to you.
	Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivatives This licence is the most restrictive of our six main licences, only allowing others to download your works and share them with others as long as they credit you, but they can't change them in any way or use them commercially.

Creative Commons licenses are drafted to be legally enforceable around the world, and have been enforced in court in various jurisdictions. Creative Commons licenses contain a “severability” clause, this allows a court to eliminate any provision determined to be unenforceable, and enforce the remaining provisions of the license.